Profile

Hoofbeats is Australia's leading riding, training, horse and land care magazine. It is the publication of choice for horse owners and riders looking for an informative and educational magazine that provides practical advice on all aspects of horse management, including horse and rider training, veterinary, alternative therapies, nutritional advice, clothing and apparel, equipment and accessories.

Over the years, Hoofbeats has cemented its place in the equine industry as the magazine providing educational and creative content, encompassing every aspect of the equestrian lifestyle.

With the majority of its readers living on a horse property, Hoofbeats caters specifically to their requirements in The Green Horse, an eight page special feature included in every issue. This exclusive guide to property management is an invaluable educational tool as it addresses how to deal with day to day issues affecting all horse property owners such as fencing, reticulation, pasture and grazing management, paddock rotation, growing herbs for horses, eco-friendly practices, 'DIY' projects, 'green' products, news and general advice that suggests how all properties can be managed to their full potential.

Articles:

Catering to all horse owners, regardless of their particular equestrian pursuits, from top competitors across each of the disciplines through to recreational riders, Hoofbeats provides articles that will become essential reference material and referred to time and time again, providing advertisers increased brand awareness and long term exposure. The magazine is also regarded as a prominent source of information relating to new products and services, allowing effective and direct communication between advertisers and a wide range of equestrian consumers looking to keep up to date with what is available in the market.

Hoofbeats offers a unique educational approach, featuring contributions from top riders and trainers along with leading industry professionals both national and international. Media Partners with Equine Veterinarians Australia (EVA), the magazine is respected and sought after by educational institutions as the ideal equestrian magazine to disseminate their latest research and findings. Published in Australia for the last 39 years, Hoofbeats remains committed to being the magazine of choice for Australian horse owners and riders.
